STICKLEY'S TRIBUTE TO TREASURED AND TIMELESS
DESIGN INFLUENCES FROM AROUND THE WORLD

Stickley has long believed that fine furniture is an art form, and every work of art tells a story.

And now Stickley begins a new story with Antiquities. Furniture that supports Gustav Stickley's assertion that "the word that is best loved in the language of every nation is home...".

Simply put, Antiquities brings the best of the world's designs to you. From the influences of Old Europe in the English Oak Collection, to the oriental influences of the Arts and Crafts designs in the Pasadena Bungalow Collection, to the early American traditions of the Valley Forge Collection. And these are only the first chapters of the story Antiquities is destined to tell.

If the word best loved in any language is home, then the second most-loved word would most likely be Stickley, for Stickley has been making homes of houses all over the world for over 100 years.

And now the Antiquities collections carry on that proud legacy of quality craftsmanship, comfort, value, and timeless design.

Dovetailed Cross Rails

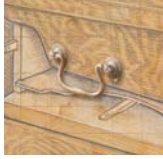

Cross rails on cases are dovetailed into the ends to strengthen the case from side to side. This joint is self locking even without glue, and separation of the end panels is impossible unless the wood is split apart.

CLASSIC BEAUTY

All drawers in the Antiquities by Stickley pieces are hand fitted and numbered, as well as being side-hung and center-guided.

Side-hung and Center-guided Drawers

This method guarantees proper alignment of the drawer. The center guide keeps the drawers from skewing sideways. Suspension on the side guides keeps the drawers level even when heavily loaded. There is never any pressure against the bottom side edges, hence no scrape or screech and no excessive friction, pulling or tugging.
